Subject: Discontinuance of production for micro-switch MS-2H

Due to product unification, production of our MS-2H micro-switch will be discontinued. The information on a substitute product and the termination date for sales are as follows;

1. Substitute micro-switch : AMS-7B01

AMS-7B01 has a switch with longer terminals enabling easier soldering. There is no difference between MS-2H and AMS-7B01 in terms of the electrical characteristics and environmental resistance. The outward form and the installation are the same as those of MS-2H.

2. Dimensions

3. Termination of sales for the MS-2H

- Purchase orders for the MS-2H will be accepted until December 31, 2010.
- For customers who have difficulty changing model in such a short period, please contact our sales department, and we will arrange to postpone the due date. The due date may possibly be extended until March 31, 2011; however, we would require a forecast for the purchase orders, and the current price for MS-2H would be re-quoted in accordance with the quantity in the forecast.
- After the above dates, basically, we will be unable to accept any purchase orders for the MS-2H.
- The substitute micro-switch AMS-7B01 is available now. Lead-time for the first order may be slightly longer than the usual.

Thank you for your understanding in this matter.
